SCHOOL COUNCILS

BACKGROUND

Parents should have meaningful involvement in their children’s education. Such involvement includes ensuring that their children are ready to learn as well as being able to choose education programs that best meet their children’s learning needs.

Other members of society also have a responsibility to contribute to the education of young people and an important role to play in education. Everyone has a role and everyone’s role is important. In an education system, few decisions can be made by one person or group alone. Parents, students, teachers, principals, superintendents, trustees, government, business and other community members are all participants in the educational endeavour and have a responsibility to work together, cooperate and communicate with one another.

Section 17 of the School Act recognizes and reaffirms the right of parents and the school community to have meaningful involvement in the education of their children through school councils. School councils are responsible to the parents and the community they serve.

REVISED POLICY STATEMENT

In each school operated by a board or a charter school board, parents and the school community have an opportunity through the school council, as one means, to advise and consult with the principal and to advise the board or the charter board on any matter relating to the school.

Q. What is a school council?

A. School councils are collective associations of parents, teachers, principals, staff, students and community representatives who seek to work together to promote the well-being and effectiveness of the entire school community and thereby to enhance student learning. A school council is a means to facilitate cooperation among all the concerned participants in the local school.

NOTES:

SCHOOL COUNCIL MEMBERSHIP

The school council must consist of a majority of parents of students attending the school and:

- the principal of the school
- at least one teacher
- at least one community representative who is the parent of an ECS child enrolled in the school or a non-parent community member with an interest in the school
- at least one student in a senior high school.

A school council of an elementary or of a junior high school shall have seven or more persons. The school council of a senior high school shall have nine or more members.

Teacher and Student Representatives on the School Council

Their respective school peers elect these representatives.

Q. Can the school council membership be expanded?

A. Yes. The School Act, s. 17(2) states that parents must be in the majority on the school council. An elementary school council would have a minimum of 7 members with 4 parent members while a senior high school would have a minimum of 9 members with 5 parent members. Schools may add more representatives to the school council depending on their needs. If the school parents (at the establishment meeting) decide to increase the school council membership, the new members must be elected according to the procedures outlined in the Regulation and the school council's by-laws.

Q. What is meant by the term school community?

A. Section 1 of the Regulation defines a school community as students enrolled in the school and their parents, children enrolled in an ECS program at the school and their parents, the school staff, and other persons who have an interest in the school.

Q. What is meant by a community representative? How should we decide who to appoint?

A. A community representative may be a member of the community such as a representative of a business, another organization, or an individual who does not have students in the school but does have a link with the school. School councils may actively seek to appoint someone from the community who has an expertise that the school council needs. For example, if a school council needs to write new by-laws, it may wish to appoint a lawyer or someone experienced in writing by-laws for a one-year term. If the school and the community league are in need of new playground equipment, the school council may wish to appoint a community league liaison and a representative from the municipal government who will facilitate the building of the new playground. The community representative could be an employer who has direct contact with students in that school who are involved in a business partnership through Career and Technology Studies. Separate schools may choose to have a representative from the church community or Parish Council.

The Regulation allows for the community representative to be a parent of a child in the school's ECS program. However, this provision was made to maximize flexibility, not to limit the representation of the wider community. Ideally, if a parent of a child in an ECS program is on the council there could also be a non-parent community representative as described above. If the school has no ECS program, the Regulation requires that there be a non-parent community representative.

Q. What if we do everything according to the Regulation and we can't get enough parents out to elect the parent members of the school council, or we are having problems filling a position?

A. If the initial establishment meeting is unsuccessful and a school council cannot be formed, the principal may establish an advisory committee for that year. Another establishment meeting must be called within 60 days of the next school year (and in subsequent years). If parent members leave during their term, the school council by-laws will identify the replacement procedures.

SCHOOL COUNCIL OPERATIONS

The items for discussion at the first meeting of the newly established school council (and over the course of the year) could include:

- writing of a mission statement or statement of philosophy
- development of a transition plan between the parent advisory council and the school council
- duties of the officers, if this has not been determined at the establishment meeting
- review of the by-laws of the past parent advisory council and a plan for updating or changing the by-laws as required
- writing of the school council by-laws if none exist
- overall representation of the school population
- selection of community/business member(s)
- if applicable, the status of the past parent advisory council under the Societies Act and a transition plan
- number of meetings to be held by the new school council
- internal conflict resolution procedures that address problems that may arise among school council members, between the school council and the wider community, and between the school council and the school staff.

School Council By-laws

The following items may be addressed in the school council by-laws:

- terms of admission of members and their rights and obligations
- the mode and time of calling general and special meetings of the school council; number constituting a quorum at any such meeting; rights of voting
- areas/issues on which school councils can advise and/or consult
- number, job descriptions, and method of election of any officers of the council
- number of meetings to be held
- finances and methods of operation including signing authority on school council bank account
- relationship between the school council and any school-based society that raises money for that school
- annual general meeting
- the preparation and custody of minutes of proceedings of meetings of the school council and other books and records of the school council (if any)
- internal conflict resolution procedures that address problems that may arise among school council members, between the school council and the wider community, and between the school council and the school staff.

The transition from parent advisory council to school council will vary from school to school. Some parent advisory councils already function as the type of school council defined in the School Act and the School Councils Regulation. For these parent advisory councils, the transition plan will be simple and will involve short timelines. In other cases, where school parents are defining their involvement for the first time, the transition plan may have to be worked through over the course of one or more years.

Q. When must a school council hold its first meeting of the school year?

A. For any school year, the first meeting of the council must be held not later than 30 days after the start of the school year or as specified in the school council by-laws.

Q. Can a school council operate its own bank account?

A. Yes. The School Act states that the school council is responsible to determine its own operations. The by-laws may address issues such as signing authority and auditing policy.

Q. What is meant by the term consult?

A. When consulting, the school council will provide ideas and opinions to assist the principal in making decisions. This exchange of ideas and opinions among the partners is usually on an equal basis. If the principal does not use the advice provided by the school council, the principal should inform the school council on what basis the decision was made.

Q. What kind of advice and consultation could the school council provide the principal?

A. Planning

- school's overall mission, philosophy, policies, rules and objectives
- school jurisdiction policies
- school plan and report
- guidelines and principles for the school budget
- inservice and/or information needs of school council members and parents
- policy development on use of facilities by the larger community
- possible selection criteria for school staff.

Communications and community relations

- methods of reporting student achievement results to parents and the public
- methods of communicating with the public
- promotion of the school in the community
- annual reporting to the school board on results achieved by the school council.

School programming

- programs offered in the school
- extracurricular activities offered in the school
- standards of student conduct
- services for students to help improve learning, such as assistance from reading specialists and guidance counseling.

School Councils and Not-for-Profit Corporations

Many parent groups in schools have incorporated under the Societies Act or Part 9 of the Companies Act in order to raise money for sporting events, bands and/or playground equipment. Many of them also have obtained registered charitable status under the federal Income Tax Act.

The powers of the school council are defined in the School Act and further in this handbook.

School parents may incorporate as a society under the Societies Act; however, this society functions either independently of a school council or as a sub-committee of the council. Fundraising societies, such as the band parents society, may have a specific role, for example, to raise funds for new instruments and/or band trips. There is no intent to stop the work of these societies. However, where the sole parent advisory council also is incorporated, the members of the society must determine what their relationship will be to the new school council and the working relationship between the two. Amendments to the society charter may be necessary. A society dealing with fundraising does not have any legal status as a school council and can not influence school matters.

It is possible that the school council and the society executive could be made up of the same people. The council and the society must maintain two distinct and separate sets of by-laws and two separate sets of minutes--one for the school council and the other for the society. Decisions made by the two groups are made according to their respective by-laws. In this type of model, it is crucial that the school council by-laws address the relationship between the two groups.

Q. School parents in our school have incorporated as a society under the Societies Act. What is the relationship of this society to the school council?

A. The status and responsibilities of a society are determined under the Societies Act. A society does not have any legal status as a school council. The School Councils Regulation (s.10) prohibits incorporation. The school council together with the society in the school must decide on the working relationship—will the society function independently of the school council or as a sub-committee of the school council? Both groups will have to review their by-laws and make any amendments necessary based on the decisions made.

SCHOOL ADVISORY COMMITTEE

If there are fewer than five school parents in attendance at the first establishment meeting or if an establishment meeting is not successful in establishing a school council, the principal may establish an advisory committee.

However, a new establishment meeting will have to be called no later than 60 days after the beginning of the next school year.

SCHOOL BOARDS WILL ADDRESS

- appeal and/or conflict resolution procedures between the principal and the school council
- procedures for filing a report summarizing the activities of the school council in the school year and a financial statement, if applicable
- procedures in the event that a board suspends the operation of the school council or recommends to the Minister that a school council be dissolved.

INSERVICE

There are six regional consortia operating in Alberta. The mandate of regional consortia is to provide inservice for all those who influence student learning. School councils are advised to check with the consortium in their region for inservice programs to assist in school council development and school-based decision making as well as other programs of interest to parents.

Alberta Community Development offers board development programs to assist members of community organizations such as school councils to understand their roles and responsibilities. For information call 780-427-2565 (toll-free by dialing 310-0000).

Q. Where can a new school council get help to get started on writing our mission statement and by-laws?

A. Check with members of your school council for anyone who may have previous experience writing by-laws, or has had board development training. Contact other school councils in your jurisdiction, or in neighboring jurisdictions. Contact the Alberta Home and School Councils' Association or the Home and School Councils' Association in your area. Appoint a community/business representative with this expertise. Check your school library, local library or bookstore for additional print resources.

NOTES:

ESTABLISHMENT

If a school has no school council, the principal must adhere to section 2(1) of the School Councils Regulation.

Notice of the establishment meeting must be given at least 21 days in advance of the meeting. In calculating the 21 days, the day of the meeting and the day written notice is given cannot be counted.

The principal, in consultation with the current parent advisory council, must decide (if a school has no parent advisory council, the principal must decide):

- when and where the establishment meeting will take place
- what information the establishment meeting notice needs to contain
- how the notice will be distributed to the school parents¹ and if there will be a public notice
- who will chair and who will act as secretary at the establishment meeting
- voting procedures for school parents in attendance at this first meeting.

Q. What are some ways we can give public notice of our establishment meetings?

A. Notice of the establishment meeting can be advertised in a publication that is circulated to the general public in the area around the school. The notice also can be posted in 5 or more locations that are accessible to the public in the area around the school, such as the public library or health clinic. It is advisable that teacher and student representatives, chosen by their peer group, attend the establishment meeting. While the general public may attend the establishment meeting, only school parents may vote. Community involvement is decided by the school parents through the model of operation they choose at this meeting and in school council by-laws subsequently developed.

Because school parents at the establishment meeting must make some major decisions about the future operation of the school council, the current parent advisory council may wish to have a preparatory meeting to provide the school parents with additional information, and/or allow for debate on certain items. If a meeting is not possible, or no current parent advisory council exists, the school parents could fill out a questionnaire that would help to prepare them for the establishment meeting.

Questions that should be considered before implementing a school council include:

- What kind of parent advisory council is currently in the school?
- In what functions is it currently involved?
- Does the parent advisory council have a set of by-laws?
- What aspects of the parent advisory council need to change in order for it to become a school council?
- What level of involvement do the school parents want?
- What type of school council would be most appropriate based on the strengths of the parents and the level of involvement that they want?
- Are there examples of other school councils to use when the parents are considering the type of council to set up for their own school?
- Who in the community has an interest in working with the school council? How could they assist?

¹ Throughout this document, the term school parents means parents of students attending the school and parents of children attending an Early Childhood Services (ECS) program at the school.

AGENDA FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT MEETING

The persons present at the establishment meeting should discuss:

- the level of involvement the school parents want
- the matters on which the school council will advise the principal
- the frequency of council meetings
- the model of governance to be followed
- any other matter which is needed to clarify the expectations of the school community so that the necessary decisions can be made.

Once there is an initial understanding of how the council will operate in that school, the school parents must decide in accordance with sections 5 and 7 of the Regulation:

- the total number of members to be on the school council
- the term of office of each member of the school council and then hold an election of the parent representatives on the council.

Q. What model of governance can school parents choose for their school council?

A. Parents can choose any model of governance that they wish for their school council. Once established, the council can specify how it will operate and how other members of the school community will be involved in the work of the school council. Many models already exist in Alberta schools. The council can choose to operate primarily on a:

“Representative Model” where the school council acts like a Board of Directors to conduct the day-to-day business and reports back to the wider school community two or more times a year.

Alternatively, many communities may prefer an:

“Assembly/Town Hall Model” where most decisions are made at regular, open meetings of the entire school community and the officers of the school council act only to carry out the wishes of the assembly.

Any model is possible under the Regulation. The school parents, at the establishment meeting, are free to choose the model that will work best for their community and specify the normal way of doing business, the voting privileges, the role of observers and the meeting format in its by-laws. The school parents may choose to change the model of governance in subsequent years of school council operation. This change would occur through the by-law amendment process outlined in the Regulation. By-law amendments must be approved by a majority of parents of students in the school or parents children enrolled in an Early Childhood Services program who vote at a special meeting of the school council called for that purpose. School staff, students and community members do not vote on by-law amendments. See Regulation section 15.

There are many resources available to assist school councils. School councils may want to refer to Robert’s Rules of Order for the conduct of their meetings, sample by-laws for societies, or any other resource that deals with the structure and governance of committees or councils.

Q. Is there a minimum of parents who must show up to vote at the establishment meeting?

A. Yes. The amended School Councils Regulation states that at least five school parents are required to attend the establishment meeting. The principal and the current parent advisory council (if one exists) should avoid meeting dates that may be problematic for the majority of school parents.

In the event that less than five school parents attend the establishment meeting, or if an establishment meeting is not successful in establishing a school council, the principal may establish an advisory committee for that year. However, a new establishment meeting must be held not later than 60 days after the start of the next school year for the purpose of establishing a school council.

WHAT SCHOOL COUNCILS SHOULD AVOID

School council members should adhere to clearly defined roles in order to avoid unnecessary conflict. School councils should avoid such practices as:

- making policies that violate school board policy
- taking on the role of the teacher, principal or school board, each of has professional and legal responsibilities within the school system
- overstepping the limits of their assignments or their expertise.

Newfoundland Department of Education

PARENTAL INVOLVEMENT

Joyce L. Epstein, "School/Family/Community Partnerships: Caring for the Children We Share," Phi Delta Kappan, May 1995, pp. 701-711, has developed a Framework of Six Types of Involvement: Parenting, Communicating, Volunteering, Learning at Home, Decision Making and Collaborating with Community. School councils may wish to reference her work.

School council members may consider these factors in their work to enhance educational accomplishments of students and allow schools to achieve success. They are:

- meaningful parent involvement programs integrated with innovative and stimulating curricula
- effective instructional practices and appropriate assessment procedures
- a positive and supportive learning environment
- enhanced opportunities for staff development
- community involvement.

CHECKLIST FOR ENABLING, IMPLEMENTING AND MAINTAINING SCHOOL COUNCILS

- friendly school environment
- administrative commitment and support
- well-defined communication structure
- enabling school board policy
- positive school experiences
- knowing how to be involved
- logistical problems addressed (such as time constraints, scheduling and child care).

NOTES:

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. When must the school council hold its first meeting of the school year?

A. The first meeting of the school council must be held within 30 days from the beginning of the school year or as specified in the school council by-laws. For example, if school begins August 31 in a given year, then the first school council meeting must be held by September 29 or as specified in the school council by-laws.

Q. To whom is the school council accountable? Can the school council be sued?

A. The school council is responsible to the parents and to the community it represents. The school council advises and consults with other school partners. There is no apparent reason for a school council to be sued. Section 44 of the School Act covers school councils just as parent advisory councils and school volunteers were covered in the past.

A school council must prepare and provide to the board a summary of its activities and a financial statement by September 30 of each year. A copy of the minutes for each school council meeting must be retained at the school and be available to the board on the request. These minutes must be retained for a minimum of 7 years.

Q. What if a small group of parents or group of the community want a change that the majority of parents don't want (e.g., guidelines for the school budget)?

A. Effective school councils reflect the priorities and attitudes of the school parents and the community at large. School councils do not make unilateral decisions about what happens in a local school. They are participants in the decision-making process along with teachers, the principal and the school board. Ultimately the principal and the school board must ensure that decisions made are in the best educational interest of the students in the school.

Q. What if a large group of school parents want to change a school council by-law?

A. Changes must be made according to section 15 of the School Council Regulation. Any school parent wishing a change in a school council by-law could attend a special meeting called by the school council for the purpose of amending by-laws and propose a by-law change. Only parents of students enrolled in the school or parents of children in an ECS program may vote on new by-laws or by-law amendments.

Q. Can parents of ECS children maintain a separate committee to advise the school on the ECS program?

A. Yes. However, this committee should not be confused with the school council. The committee has a very specific focus on children in an ECS program.

Q. What do school councils do?

A. Each school operated by a board must provide for the establishment of a school council. The majority of the members of a school council must be parents of students attending the school. The school council may, at its discretion, advise the principal and the board respecting any matter relating to the school. The school council may, at its discretion, consult with the principal who ensures that students have the opportunity to meet educational standards and that fiscal management of the school is in accordance with board requirements.

School councils facilitate the development of a common vision for the school. Members work together on school councils to facilitate communication, planning and resource allocation regarding priorities and programs that are needed to meet the expectations of the local school community. School councils do not manage the day-to-day operations of the school.

Once established, school councils should be able to look beyond the needs of a particular school and cooperate with other school councils in sharing information and ideas and in providing advice and information to school boards and Alberta Education.

Q. Will school councils undermine the roles of the school staff?

A. School councils respect the roles of the school staff in their school. School councils neither govern the school nor involve themselves directly in determining professional practices. For example, school boards are responsible to evaluate, supervise, hire and fire school staff and individual teachers must be allowed to use their professional judgment to plan instruction for students.

NOTES:

Q. What appeal mechanisms and/or conflict resolution procedures are in place?

A. For internal matters among school council members, between the school council and the wider community, and between the school council and the school staff, the school council must develop a conflict resolution procedure. This could be done in conjunction with the school board to ensure consistency in procedures throughout the jurisdiction.

The school board must have an appeal process or conflict resolution procedure in place to resolve disputes between a principal and a school council.

Q. What if two or more separately administered programs are housed in one school -- can each have its own school council?

A. It is possible to have more than one school council. There are a few schools that offer an alternative program according to section 16 of the School Act with a distinct student population and teaching staff. In these special cases, the school community may choose to form two school councils - one for the regular program and one for the alternative program. The decision to form one or two councils must be made at the establishment meeting.

Q. Is it possible for two schools, with one principal, to have a common school council?

A. Yes. It depends on the reasons for twinning the schools. Just as in the previous answer, the school parents should decide if the students' needs would be best served by one school council or by two separate councils.

Q. Can a junior high and a senior high school decide to create one school council with only one of the two principals on the council?

A. No. The intent is that each school will have its own school council. There is nothing to prevent the two school councils from having joint meetings on matters of common interest or to develop a communication plan between the two schools.

Q. Must parent members of the school council be of the same faith as the separate school district, whether Protestant or Roman Catholic?

A. Unless a resolution has been passed under section 17(3) of the School Act, the members of a school council may be of any faith (s.8 Regulation).

A board of a separate school district or a division made up only of separate school districts, by resolution, may require that the parent portion of the school council be of the same faith as the separate district, whether Protestant or Roman Catholic.

Q. What are some ways the school council can attract more school parents and parents of future students to participate in the school?

A. Advertise. Organize a special meeting of the school council and invite parents of students who will be entering your school the next fall. Publish the agenda for the upcoming meetings in the school newsletter, the community league newsletter, the local community paper, and/or the feeder schools' newsletters. Publish the approved minutes of meetings. Post the agenda and minutes of meetings in the feeder schools. Organize "fan-out" calls. Ask your local radio and/or television stations if they will advertise your events free of charge.

Q. Is it necessary for a virtual school to have a school council?

A. Yes. The parents of students enrolled in a virtual school as defined in the School Act must have the opportunity to establish a school council in much the same way as a school council in a regular school. Virtual school council members could communicate via the e-mail in the same manner as the students. A virtual school council is expected to follow the School Councils Regulation and the School Act and operate as outlined in this Handbook.

Q. Are school councils covered board liability insurance?

A. Yes. The School Act states that a board must keep in force a policy or policies of insurance which indemnify the board, its employees and school councils.
